Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a floral piece,
if so we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words
as any friend could say;
Perhaps you were not there at all,
just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much for all of the food, cards, prayers and thoughts.

WATER SECURITY SUMMIT

A forum for grassroots action on water rights and security in Maine

Saturday ~ September 29 ~ 9am-4pm

Buchanan Alumni House-University of Maine, Orono, Maine

Water is the most vital resource needed for life on earth.

Here in Maine we are blessed with a plentiful supply of water, but there are growing threats to the quality and quantity of our precious resource.

Those threats include:

- commercial water extraction,
- challenges to the rights of the Penobscot people to protect and manage the Penobscot River,
- landfill expansion (Juniper Ridge),
- east-west corridor proposals,
- forestry practices,
- mining,
- and more.

SPONSORS

To effectively address these serious threats, it's imperative that concerned citizens and groups addressing water issues share information and experiences and coordinate efforts toward protecting our water resources.

To that end a number of individual water activists have organized a summit on water security and rights.

The major goals of the summit are:

- raise awareness of various threats to our water,
- explore all options to protect water in our communities, and
- to inspire everyone to take action.

The event, which will open with a traditional Penobscot ceremony, will include featured speakers and break-out sessions to address various water issues.

Speakers include:

Tara Houska (Couchiching First Nation Anishinaabe), tribal attorney and the National Campaigns Director of Honor the Earth
Sherri Mitchell, Native American attorney/teacher/activist
Michelle Sanborn, New Hampshire organizer for the Community Environmental Legal Defense Fund
